7 Insurance and Pension Mistakes for Swiss SMEs

What to check before the next renewal. A practical short checklist for business owners, entrepreneurs and finance managers.

Why this checklist matters

Many Swiss SMEs have insurance policies, but no current overall view. That is where gaps, duplication, rising premiums and missed cancellation deadlines often appear.

Immediate action before renewal

Review important contracts at least once a year - ideally 3 to 6 months before expiry or renewal. Set reminders 90 to 120 days before the cancellation deadline.

The 7 mistakes at a glance

1 No current policy overview

Provider, annual premium, cover, expiry date, cancellation deadline and internal owner are missing or scattered.

2 Renewal without a needs review

Turnover, employees, locations, activities, vehicles, machines and IT systems can change the insurance need.

3 Deadlines identified too late

Missed cancellation periods may keep the company in a contract even if better solutions are available.

4 Lowest premium over best value

A low price helps little if cover, exclusions, deductible or claims service do not match the real risk.

5 Employee cover seen only as cost

Accident insurance, daily sickness allowance and BVG/LPP can support employer attractiveness when clearly explained.

6 Owner and key persons overlooked

In owner-managed SMEs, long illness or disability of a key person can become a serious business risk.

7 No annual review

A fixed annual review helps reduce gaps, duplication, unnecessary costs and missed deadlines.

Core idea: The goal is not simply more insurance. The goal is a clear, understandable and economically sensible structure.

CHECKLIST

Short checklist for your next review

If several points are marked “No” or “Unclear”, a structured review is worthwhile.

Do we have a fixed annual review date before budgeting and cancellation deadlines?	☐	☐	☐

When a professional review makes sense

Especially after growth, new employees, new locations, vehicles or machines, clearly rising premiums, unclear covers, planned provider comparisons, or when management or the board needs a clear basis for decision-making.

Next step

S&L Management und Consulting GmbH supports Swiss SMEs with a structured review of insurance and pension solutions: risks, relevant covers, possible gaps, unnecessary costs, deadlines and sensible next steps.
